InTech Collegiate High School

InTech Collegiate High School actively seeks to locate, identify, and refer children (Freshmen to Seniors) who require special education and related services in order to assist them and their families. If you are concerned about a child's development, you are encouraged to contact the school.

Special education services at InTech Collegiate High School are implemented in accordance with the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act of 2004 (IDEA 2004) and associated regulations and state statute and regulations. Child Find procedures are used by InTech Collegiate High School to determine whether or not a student requires a referral for a case study evaluation. These procedures include problem-solving support, consultations, screening, intervention and progress monitoring, and evaluation meetings. Alternative procedures and programs are utilized in regular education classes prior to testing.

In accordance with IDEA 2004, InTech Collegiate High School uses eligibility criteria to identify the existence of disabilities that significantly and negatively impact the school performance of students, creating the need for special education and related services. Teams of educators and parents determine the existence of disabilities, the adverse effect of those disabilities on the school performance of individual children, and the set of special education and related services that are needed for those children to achieve in school. Team decisions are documented on a form called the Individualized Educational Plan, or IEP. IEPs are written for individual children with disabilities on at least an annual basis.

Parents having questions about how the IEP process works are encouraged to contact the principal, school counselor, or special education director at InTech Collegiate High School.
